

Economics

1. General Overview

College of Economics and International Commerce provides quality education for future leaders who would play a pivotal role in various economic fields. With the advent of digital economy, we have experienced rapid changes in international commerce, not least of which is the change involving the WTO system. As a result, we are in the midst of globalization processes and they require a large number of experts in international commerce. We are trying our best to meet this challenge by providing adequate education for our students. We are emphasizing the balance between theory and practice in our teaching. In addition, we encourage students to have communicative competence in regional languages as well as English and computer literacy.

2. Educational Goals/Objectives

We aim to produce professionals in economics and international commerce who respect Christian ethics and have practical and globalized mindset and who can adequately keep up with the changes in the world economy.
